CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY / GERONTOLOGY-- The Department of Psychology and the Gerontology Center seek to fill a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level starting August 18, 2007. This position will be shared between the Department of Psychology and the Gerontology Center, a unit of the Schiefelbusch Institute for Life Span Studies. We seek candidates with training in clinical psychology and aging, who will establish and maintain a productive and fundable program of research in these areas and who are committed to high quality teaching. A PhD in Psychology obtained from a clinical psychology training program is required. Teaching responsibilities include two psychology courses per year. Review of applications will begin October 23, 2006 and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants should send a letter of interest including a teaching and research statement, curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, graduate transcripts, selected reprints/preprints, and evidence of teaching effectiveness in the form of a teaching portfolio and/or other documentation to: Professor Susan Kemper (SKEMPER@KU.EDU), Chair of the Psychology/Gerontology Search Committee, Gerontology, Dole Human Development Center, 1000 Sunnyside Ave., Lawrence, KS 66045-7556. Lawrence is a college town of 85,000 with a vibrant arts and music community, located in the rolling hills of northeastern Kansas, 30 minutes from metropolitan Kansas City. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. Complete position announcement available at www.clas.ku.edu. KU is an EO/AA employer.
The University of Kansas

Gerontology Center

September 1, 2006

Carol Ryff, Ph.D.
University of Wisconsin-Madison
Institute on Aging Psychology
2245 Medical Sciences Center
1300 University Ave.
Madison, WI 53706

Dear Dr. Ryff,

The Gerontology Center at the University of Kansas has entered a new phase under the leadership of Dr. David Ekerdt. This year we are searching for a new faculty member who will join our Center and the program in Clinical Psychology. This is a highly attractive position, carrying a 50% research appointment and a 50% academic appointment (teaching 1 course per semester). The Gerontology Center is a component of the Schiefelbusch Institute for Life Span Studies and all of the resources of the Institute are available to support this position as well as those of the departments.

Please bring this position to the attention of your most promising doctoral students or recent Ph.D.s. I have enclosed a copy of the job ad. We hope to fill the position for Fall 2007. More information about the Center can be found at our website:
http://www.ku.edu/~kugeron/.

I would be happy to talk with potential candidates about opportunities here at KU. KU is an exciting place that truly supports interdisciplinary collaboration; it is recognized for its collegial atmosphere and many opportunities for professional development. We have a new Provost, Richard Lariviére, and a new Dean, Joseph Steinmetz, who are intent on restructuring KU to support for research and interdisciplinary studies. Lawrence is a pleasant college town with a lively downtown arts and entertainment district and attractive housing and high quality schools.

Cordially,

Susan Kemper, Ph.D.
Roy A. Roberts Distinguished Professor, Psychology
Senior Scientist, Gerontology